

You and the environment? Allies.

Federal Volunteer Service with BUND

The Federal Volunteer Service: Time to do the right thing.

- Are you finished with school, your studies, your work, or are you a pensioner? It's time – find the right place for taking action, as a volunteer with BUND.
- Start when you want to – and get involved for 6 to 18 months. If you're aged 27 and up, you can also volunteer part-time.
- In addition to receiving pocket money, as well as board and lodging where necessary, you remain entitled to social security contributions and to your child benefits, orphan's pension and / or housing allowance.
- Benefit from receiving theoretical and practical knowledge in addition to a qualified reference.

- You want to get involved for environmental conservation specifically? Make your ideas a reality with BUND.

- Discover new job areas: a Federal Volunteer Service at BUND will give you new perspectives.

- Enhance your day-to-day life through volunteering – the Federal Volunteer Service provides valuable environmental knowledge.

- Share your experience in environmental conservation: through the Federal Volunteer Service, generations learn with and from each other.

Get involved through the Federal Volunteer Service

Northwest

From the protected mudflats of Lower Saxony to the lynx of the Eifel: our regional office for the Northwest is your point of contact for Federal Volunteer Services in Northwestern Germany.

East

The North and Baltic Sea coasts offer countless ways to get involved on behalf of the environment – and the Mecklenburg Lake Plateau and the Havelland are also unique habitats themselves. Do you want to help shape politics in Berlin or Leipzig? Here too, our regional office in the East will know the right place of assignment for you.

South

Getting politically involved in Munich? Caring for orchards by Lake Constance? Our regional office in the South has many ideas for where you can participate between the Black Forest and the Ore Mountains.
